FREE SPEECH.

A misapprehension seems to have been created in the North as to the action taken by the constitutional convention with reference to guaranteeing "freedom of speech." President Goode received a letter yesterday from Rev.
John Greyson, rector of St. Philip's
Church, Wiscasset, Me., in which he

Church, Wiscasset, Me., in which he says:

I see it reported in the Beston Herald of this date that the Virginia constitutional convention yesterday refused to put an article into its bill of rights guaranteeing freedom of speech in the old Commonwealth. I hope this is not true. The right to shut an anarchist's mouth implies the right to shut a clergyman's mouth. I want a free pulpit.

Our bill of rights in Maine declares $6.000 a year alimony, but he refuses to put an article into its bill of rights guaranteeing freedom of speech in the old Commonwealth. I hope this is not true. The right to shut an anarchist's mouth implies the right to shut a clergyman's mouth. I want a free pulpit. Our bill of rights in Maine declares (Const. Maine, Art. 1, Sec. 4): "Every citizen may freely speak, write, and publish his sentiments on any subject, being responsible for the abuse of this liberty." This is the traditional precedent of men who speak English. I hope Virginia will not be scared from its ancient convictions by the sad trial of the present day. Let us stand by the anpresent day. Let us stand by the ancleat landmarks.

President Goode sent the following reply: Commonwealth of Virginia,

Senate Chamber,
Senate Chamber,
Richmond, Va., Sept. 24, 1901.
Dear Sir:—I have the bonor to acheowledge the receipt of your communication of the 18 h Instant. The article in the Boston Herald is misleading and there seems to be a general mis-apprehension throughout the north in regard to the action of the Virginia Constitutional Convention upon the Constitutional Convention upon the subject referred to.

The twelfth section of the declaration of rights, as drawn by its immortal author, George Massu, and adopted by the Virginia convention on the 12 m day of June, 17.6, declared that the freedom of the press is one of the great bulwarks of liberty and should never be restrained by any but a despotic be restrained by any but a despotic government.

The convention of 1829-1830, composed of such men as John Marshall, James Madison, James Monroe and others scarcely less distinguished, and the convention of 1850-1851, composed of able and patriotic Virginians, readopted the section without any amendment. In the convention of 1867, held during the reconstruction period, the following words were inperiod, the following words were in-serted for the first time: "And any citizen may speak, write and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that lib-

In the convention now sitting the committee of the whole has recom-mended that the words last quoted shall be omitted, but no final action has been taken and an amendment is pending which provides that they shall be r. stored. It is proper to add that many members voted in the committee of the whole against their insertion in the new declaration of rights because they regard them as mere surplusage. Section 14 of Article 5 of the present constitution, which it is proposed to re-tain, provides among other things that the general assembly shall not pass any law abridging the freedom of speech and of the press.

Permit me to assure you that Virginia, the cradle of the republic, will not be frightened from her propriety by the recent sad occurence that has shocked the civilized world and that she will continue to stand by the ancient landmarks erected by her own more than and distinguished accounts. worthy and distinguished sons, whose fame is now the common property of our entire country.

Thanking you for your expressions of good will and your invocations of God's blessings upon our deliberations, I am,

Very truly yours,
John Goods.

Barrett, rector of St. Mary's Catholic Cathedral, Burlington, Vt., announced on Sunday that to parents sending their children of 10 years and younger to the public schools absolu-tion would be refused. This was according to an edict issued by Bishop Michaud. He further stated that Catholics who were married by Protestant ministers would be excommunicated, and to those Catholics who were married or attempted to be married by Levis of the Passe or a notary pubmarried or attempted to be married by a Justice of the Peace or a notary public absolution would be refused. The Rt. Rev. John S. Michaud is Bishop of the Burlington diocese, which includes the State of Vermont. The city school authorities have never opposed the parochial schools for the reason that the accommodations for such a large number of pupils as would naturally come from these schools in case they were from these schools in case they were not in existence would overburden the present public school facilities and necessitate an extra burden on the taxpayers.

She is Mrs. Percy Bennett, and she is considered one of the most beautiful women of the kingdom. Mrs. Bennett's vogue received the impetus of royal approbation during the King's recent stay at Homburg. She was a guest at Ritter's Hotel, the fashionable resort of English visitors to the famous spa, and while there attended a dioner given by Lord Glenesk, at which the King was a guest. His majesty remarked upon her beauty and intellectuality, and in conversation paid her most delicate compliments. Mrs. Bennett will surely be a central figure at many of the fashionable entertainments in London this season.
